 ANVIL

When you need to act quickly in response to incidents or other emergency situations, do you have the necessary plans, people and resources on standby to bring the situation under control and to a satisfactory conclusion?

LET ANVIL DO THE LEGWORK

Many large-scale incidents of the types we have seen over the last few years could involve tens, if not hundreds of your employees. And you will need to work fast to understand your level of exposure and offer any necessary support.

Thankfully, when incidents occur, Anvil has it all covered. Our connected care approach means we can act for you. Performing as an extension of your own team by providing a seamless response to every incident, supported by first responders and medics in our global risk management hub, assistance teams on-the-ground and Riskmatics® our award-winning threat monitoring, tracking and communications technology.

We fully coordinate the response and inform you once the situation is under control; saving you time and worry.

Anvil is uniquely positioned to deliver these services as we are the only risk management provider to centrally manage all risks from one location - tracking the situation live, locating your people, organising medical treatment and getting them to safety.

It's a relief to know that for most incidents, those initially feared caught up in the event are ultimately discovered to be safe and well. But critical events don't just occur Monday to Friday 9-5, they happen through the night, at weekends and during public holidays.

Who do you have ready to respond?

AN EVOLVED SERVICE OFFERING

Not only do we alert you to the incident and notify you who or what has the potential to be impacted, we also undertake the initial investigations to ascertain if any of your employees are in certain peril.

This means your time, focus and resources are only needed at the most crucial stage of incident management – when help is urgently needed. And when that's the case, you can rely on Anvil to deliver the necessary assistance on your behalf through our in-house teams of medical, security and logistics experts.

“Connected care means a faster, joined-up response that returns your people to wellbeing and restores business as usual as soon as possible.”

HOW IT WORKS

Anvil's extensive team of risk analysts operate 24/7 monitoring 1000s of global sources for information on emerging threats and live incidents that have the potential to impact employee safety or business continuity.

2.

As soon as an analyst becomes aware of an incident, the details are immediately uploaded to Riskmatics® and the database automatically begins searching for people and other assets that could be affected.

3.

Critical Event Notifications are disseminated via push notification, email, SMS and voice to alert your people to any danger or disruption and ask them to verify that they are safe. Those responsible for business continuity and property assets are also informed and security recommendations are provided.

4.

According to your Incident Response Plan, we will report back to you within an agreed timeframe detailing individuals or other assets that have not been accounted for or who have confirmed they need support.

5.

Either your internal teams can take appropriate action to manage the situation from that point forward or our team of 24/7 emergency responders can act on your behalf, to bring the incident under control and deliver the advice and assistance needed.

WHO WOULD BENEFIT FROM USING THE SERVICE?

Anvil offers managed services to support organisations for a variety of reasons. It could be due to an absence of internal resources or structure to respond swiftly and in a cohesive manner to particular events. Or it could be because by choosing to outsource these functions, time and cost pressures on the business are dramatically reduced. A number of our clients utilise the service as an alternative to an in-house GSOC function, which has proved to be more proficient and cost effective for their operations.

Whatever your organisation's scale and operational framework, we're certain there's a form of Managed Service we can provide to help you deal with incidents and respond to requests for support more successfully in the future.
